arch_weekly note

We have been blasted by thunderstorms the last few days. Some have been really intense, but luckily no tornadoes for us. I know it is busy time for everyone as you finish up your projects but please pay attention to the weather and your safety so we all arrive at the finish line in one piece. Also, don't forget to get some sleep. Last week, I attended a lecture by Rob Legato, the Academy Award winning visual effects director for films like Avatar. You can imagine the deadline pressure he is under; but he stated very clearly that getting some sleep and starting fresh in the morning is the only way to produce your best work.

So, best of luck in your final push and stay safe.
