Are you excited that it snowed?

Answers:

Yes, love it! I hope it snows more!

Select

I'm happy it snowed, but we can move on to Spring, now.

NOTICE: PLEASE CLOSE DESIGN LAB DOORS

Students, you must close the design laboratory doors after 5pm. Your keycard will give you access so there is no need to prop open the doors. Please see IT in Seaton 0068 if your keycard isn't working. The doors lock on a schedule to keep your belongings safe but propping the doors eliminates that very important security measure. Thank you!

Select

I was already done with Winter.

Select

I don't like snow, period.

Weigel Library Updates

Valentine idea from the Library –

Is your significant other looking for a Valentine's Day gift for you or vice versa? The Weigel Library staff would like to suggest a pretty pink or bright red flash drive! Really any color would work. Then you can use your very special usb for scanning in Weigel each and every visit.

K-State Libraries' CADS Spring 2018 Events –

Join the Center for the Advancement of Digital Scholarship (CADS) at K-

State Libraries for spring workshops and events that demystify copyright, author rights, open access course materials and more.

Registration is encouraged, but not required. <http://www.lib.k-state.edu/cads-events> Can't attend in person? Participate via Zoom at <https://ksu.zoom.us/j/5905348241> Questions? Contact cads@k-state.edu.

These free hour-long workshops are designed for a wide audience, faculty, staff and students, to provide a solid foundation for a successful academic experience.

Resource of the Week – Portfolios, resumes, websites, oh my!

Design Expo is Friday, March 2! Are you ready?

Weigel's portfolio, resume, and website design resources can help. Some are on display; others are still on the reserve shelves; ask for those at the circulation desk. They all have a 7-day loan period, so you can get real inspiration!

Gina Ford to Present Lecture in Ekdahl Lecture Series

February 28, 2018 | 4:30PM, Regnier Forum

Ms. Ford is a principal and landscape architect in Sasaki's Urban Studio. The Urban Studio is an energized and interdisciplinary group of practitioners solely dedicated to the improvement of quality of life in cities through rigorous planning, exceptional design, and strong community partnerships.

Her work encompasses a wide range of scales and project types, from public parks and plazas to large-scale landscape planning and waterfront projects. She brings to each project a passion for the process of making vibrant landscape spaces—from the conceptual design to the details of implementation—with a particular focus on the life and use of urban, public environments.

Ms. Ford's experience is additionally informed by extensive research, writing, travel, teaching, and competitions. Her teaching includes guest critic and studio instructor roles at the Harvard Design School, MIT, and RISD. She holds degrees in architecture from Wellesley College and landscape architecture from the Harvard Graduate School of Design, and was the recipient of Wellesley's Shaw Fellowship, the Janet Darling Webel Prize, the Hyde Chair at the University of Nebraska, and the Charles Eliot Travelling Fellowship. Gina also serves on the board of directors for The Cultural Landscape Foundation, and on the editorial board of Architecture Boston.

Regnier Forum
4:30 pm

A reception for student and professional members of ASLA will follow in The Ekdahl, 5:30 pm.

The Exhibit runs in the Cassias Gallery in Regnier Hall through February 16, 2018.

The New American Garden is part of The Cultural Landscape Foundation (TCLF) Landslide program that brings national attention to threatened and at-risk landscapes. Each year TCLF produces a thematic Landslide report – the work of Oehmen, van Sweden was the theme in 2015.

The New American Garden: The Landscape Architecture of Oehme, van Sweden exhibition includes 52 contemporary and newly commissioned photographs of important residential, civic, and commercial projects.
Its debut in 2015 was timed to the 25th anniversary of the influential 1990 book Bold Romantic Gardens, which the two business partners wrote with Susan Rademacher, former executive director of the Louisville Olmsted Parks Conservancy, Inc., and currently the parks curator at the Pittsburgh Parks Conservancy.
